- Computer games are very popular nowadays. Computer became an integral part of life and computer games are the best way to spend free time.
- I agree that some computer games are useful. Some games develop memory, logic and thinking. But the most part of computer games has a harmful effect on health.
- First of all, people spoil their eyes. People only sit in front of computer. The most terrible thing is that many games cause psychological and mental diseases.
- Yes, for someone computer is better than life but for me computer is not so important because our life is very interesting to happen.
- I will choose friends, trainings, communication. Therefore I disagree with this statement that computer games are better than life.

Modern life is impossible to imagine without computer games and computer programmes. But some people use computer only for playing computer games. They are sure that computer games are better than real life.

I can not agree with this statement. Real life is better for me than virtual life. Players often forget real life and start to live the life of imaginary heroes, they involve in this world and sometimes they can't leave virtual world. It can destroy all relationships, job losses, and lead to suicide. I am sure, that real life can give you more wonderful emotions and good memories.

In conclusion I would like to say that ^{playing} computer games is a good way to relax and spend your free time. But computer games can't replace all the colours of our beautiful life.

Nowadays some people may hold the opinion that computer games are better than life. But there is little evidence to support people, who prefer computer games to reality.

As for me, it is terrible and not properly. Players forget real life and start to live the adventure of imaginary heroes. This leads to a number of consequences: job losses, broken relationships, loss of sight and the most terrible suicide. Millions people escape the reality because being successful in real life. But it is doesn't mean that it is better. There is only one life.

For the above what I have discussed we can draw a conclusion that over if reality is difficult, it is better than games, because playing games is only illusion of being successful.

Some people think that computer games are better than life. Is it so? Tastes differ. I think that everyone has his own opinion. Every one should think about his own life.

I think that computer games develop us, make us find a way out from different situations. We can spend our free time very interesting! Computer games help us to be well-educated, to know better the world.

On the other hand, we mustn't spend much time on computer games. It spoils our health and our eyes. Our life is short.

Thus, computer games is not bad, but you mustn't forget about your parents, your friends and your hobby. Don't forget you are a teenager.

Nowadays a lot of people suppose that computer games are better than life. Nevertheless there are many people who don't agree with that. Let's try to discuss it.

Well, in my opinion, it is much better to live a full life without devoting a lot of time to computers.

It is obvious that when you live a full life you have many friends, you have no problems with eyes that which can often occur due to excessive using the computer, you have no problems with school and so on. I think

So, this problem is debatable. As for me, my point of view is right.

Some people think that computer games are better than life. They spend all their time in virtual reality trying to escape from ^{life} problems.

From my point of view it's absurdly to live ~~by~~ only by games and not to value life. Secondly, it's harmful for ~~health~~ health to spend a lot of time in ~~the~~ front of the screen. Such people must to understand one thing: ~~best~~ life is the best that they have, but it's very short for to spend it on worthless things. Real life is wonderful and remarkable. I can't realize how this people don't admire by the beautiful world surrounding them.

So, in conclusion I can to say that it's very important to live real life, to notice what happens around ~~them~~ us and don't afraid of life problems and to learn to solve them.

Some people love video games and spend a lot of time to play. Some of these people think, that computer games are better than life. In my view, every person can choose his way of life. If he wants to play video games instead of developing in real life it is his choice.

I don't agree with this statement. I want to say, that real life is my choice. It is more interesting for me and I want to spend my time and experience myself here. But as I said early, a video game or real life is choice of every person. I mean, every person should share real life and games, to don't lose in universe.

Nowadays computer is one of the most necessary device of every person. You can chat with another users of internet, find some new information or just watch films etc. But computer is still an addiction & you must not forget about your real life.

As for my opinion, I am for computers, because computers can help us to make our life easier. We can buy food, clothes & electronics using computer. We also can use big sources of information. In addition to this, you can speak with people of all the world.

Some people think that computer games are better than life. I disagree with them. People forget about this wonderful world. Small children can play computer all day long. It is very harmful for health. People speak only in virtual world instead of reality. At last, computer radiation also can hurt your health.

To be or not to be, but we can't do without computers

105.

I think that most people agree that computer is one of the greatest inventions of the century. It is a real revolution in technology. Modern computers have a great number of possibilities which are used by people for work and entertainment. So we can say that computer has become a friend to all people.

The possibilities of modern computer are very wide. People can watch films and listen to music with the help of a computer. They can create images, count, write texts, exchange an information through Internet and do other operation. This list has no end. It is possible because modern computer can do for about 500 000 sums in a fraction of a second.

Of course we can think that computer is cleverer than people. But it is not true. We should not forget that computer was invented by man and all operations which are available in computer were created by people. People who work with computers are called programmers. In present days programming is very popular and useful profession because most of work such as paying wages, reserving seats on planes, control of sputniks, composing music and other things is done by computers.

It's true that people put in machine their brain but they cannot put in it the ability of feeling. So computers cannot feel. This characteristic belongs to human nature. This is the main difference between the machine and a man.
